Allen Parish Training School: Remembering a Legacy

Allen Parish Training School was founded in 1915 as a response to the increasing need for education among the community. The school was established in a building that was previously a store and served the community for several years. The school continued to grow and expand, providing education to a larger number of students. The school was eventually renamed to Allen Parish Training School in 1932, in honor of a local benefactor.

The school provided education to students from various backgrounds and provided opportunities for them to learn and grow. The school's curriculum included a variety of subjects, such as English, mathematics, science, and history. The school also offered vocational training programs to prepare students for careers in various fields.

The Allen Parish Training School played a significant role in the community, providing education and opportunities for students to succeed. The school's legacy continues to be remembered and celebrated, with efforts to preserve its history and honor its contributions to the community.

The Allen Parish Training School was located in Franklin, Louisiana, and was eventually renamed to the Franklin High School.

The school's history includes a variety of notable alumni, including Philadelphia Eagles football player Jim Brown, who was born in Franklin, Louisiana.

The school's legacy continues to be celebrated through various events and programs, including the annual Allen Parish Training School Reunion, which brings together former students and community members to celebrate the school's history and contributions.

Allen Parish Training School: Remembering a Legacy

A famous slogan of the past read, "Welcome to Oakdale—Where Oak is Queasy and Pine is King." But we now welcome you home to a Federal Detention Center where the parish that will construct is a prison soon. Regardless of the flexibility, we are hoping that your stay will be an enjoyable one.

A good story is measured, to a certain degree, by whether the reader can identify himself in the story. All of you, with your successes and characters in chapter two.

The late Mr. Thomas Ernest Butler took the principship of Mr. Dillon, who now resides in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. He was appointed principal of Allen Parish Training School in 1933. In the early 30s, still untrained, he boarded with a late Mr. and Mrs. R. Calloway in Big Corn. Many trophies and wars were the rethe channeling and interest had been different. But the students played basketball anyway from a far away corn. Many trophies and wars were the re-spiring to be regrouped in sports.

Throughout the years, Mr. Butler trained of academic progress made by students and was very proud of their success. But he did not feel that the time was right to develop a complete physical education.

Mrs. Maxull Bradley (Mrs. Ches- sard Campbell) became the first substitute teacher in Allen Parish. She was able to assist the principal in improving Allen High’s record system and overall management system of the school which led the way for the school’s academic recognition.

In the period of 35 years completed by Mr. Butler we must pause and consider his wise rule.

We believe that the warmest, digni-ity and intelligence of the late Mr. Butler were used to mold and mend and change some aspects of the administrative outlook. Mr. Butler was loved, adored and highly regarded by all.

Violence and movements began sweeping the country in the 30s and 40s, leading to race discrimination, Korean Conflict, Viet-
